Dear Sir,

I beg to report that during my tour I received unfavourable
reports as regards
the character of ~~the~~ Amibai Sreenivasulu
of Devarhalli &
Amibai Someswara
Jai of Hoshote; as usual, it is unlikely that evidence will be forthcoming
in an enquiry,

but the transfer of

will be direct under

be desirable.

Yours truly

My dear sir,

With reference to your demi-official letter, dated the 25th August 1914, stating that you have received unfavourable reports about the character of the Amildars of Devanhalli and Hoskote and proposing their transfers to other suitable places, I am desired to state that the ^{question of their} transfers will be ^{considered} ~~ordered~~ in due course.

7 In the meanwhile, Government will be glad if you will kindly communicate to them definite information which ^{might} ~~may~~ have already reached you or which you may hereafter be able to collect, in regard to the abuse of official position by the Amildars concerned. It is enough if the information is such as to lead to a moral conviction ^{regarding} ~~about~~ their guilt.

8 The favour of a very early reply is requested.

Yours sincerely,

Dues

~~By the way, let me say that the District Administration is not in a position to collect reliable information in cases of suspicious conduct. The general administration is not in a position to help you if you merely ask it to transfer the person or persons feeling mean to the District & transfer your burden to the District.~~

Cases have come to the notice of Government in which Heads of Departments and Deputy Commissioners merely content themselves with proposing the transfer of subordinates who are suspected of misconduct or malpractices. The official transferred, if really a bad man, gets a fresh start in his career of mischief in a new station, and such transfers cannot fail to affect the purity of the administration.

2. When complaints are received or suspicions arise regarding the conduct of subordinate officers, they should be thoroughly investigated and, if necessary, reported to Government. When there is sufficient evidence to show that the officers complained against are not reliable, a confidential report should be made to the Head of the Department concerned or to Government, as the case may be, with suitable recommendations. All such reports should be treated as strictly confidential.

3. Government confidently look to the Heads of Departments and the Deputy Commissioners to do their duty in this respect and to co-operate with Government in raising the tone of the service.
